Summer in Sorrento and Rome Programs

Summer Session I

Our exciting study abroad program is based in the picturesque town of Sorrento, Italy, located on western Italy's Amalfi Coast, at the southern tip of the Bay of Naples. In addition to participating in daily class sessions and course-related field trips, students have the opportunity to visit incredible sites in the region, including the ruins of Pompeii and Herculaneum, Mount Vesuvius, Rome, Naples, Positano, and the island of Capri and its Blue Grotto. The program provides a wonderful sampling of Italian art, architecture, cuisine and culture. On one outing, students visit a local country farm kitchen for a cooking lesson and gain a hands-on appreciation of the local cuisine, which is later eaten at a traditional meal with the host family. Mount Vesuvius overlooks everyday life in Sorrento, and the local landscape offers fascinating geological and ecological adventures. By simply walking down the cliffside from the Piazza de San Francesco outside their classroom, students find several beachfronts where they can enjoy swimming, sunbathing and getting to know the locals, in this ultimate Mediterranean atmosphere.

Graduate Course Offered

CRSR 288 S:

Human Rights and Conflict Transformation: A Global Perspective for Counselors and Educators, 3 s.h.

Dr. Laurie Johnson, Professor, Department of Counseling, Research, Special Education and Rehabilitation

This course has been approved as an elective for students in most master's-level counseling programs and some education programs in the School of Education and Allied Human Services. Students must check with their advisers to confirm approval.

Summer Session II

During the first two weeks, our exciting study abroad program is based in the picturesque town of Sorrento, Italy, located on western Italy's Amalfi Coast, at the southern tip of the Bay of Naples. Students have the opportunity to visit Pompeii, Mount Vesuvius, Naples, Positano, Paestum and the island of Capri. The trip provides a wonderful sampling of Italian art, architecture, cuisine and culture. The Bay of Naples and Mount Vesuvius offer fascinating geological and ecological adventures. The third week of the Summer II program is based in exciting Rome, the Eternal City, also known for centuries as Caput Mundi ("capital of the world"). Rome attracts nearly 20 million awe-inspired visitors each year, but its particular attraction is that it has managed to preserve impressive monuments and ruins from its varied past, and incorporate them into the present. It is a living museum, an archaeological archive of Western culture, but also an evolving, vibrant city, still creating new architectural wonders.
